Installment or Cash?
Money?. Lots of It
Compulsory Gaelic

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE does not [illegible] with those that denounce installment buying as unwise extravagance. He observes that the country's debt is about seventy thousand million dollars, whereas outstanding credits for buying, etc., amount to [illegible] billions.

That is to say, the president does not urge buying on installments anything but what you cannot afford, and what you cannot pay for with certainty.

Insist on what you buy. If you want an automobile, you might as well buy it now and pay for it later. Any good car will last and more if you give it time. To postpone enjoyment or sunshine, and a family united in a car, while you save up the money for your automobile now.

Prosperity, the mainspring of efficient lazy world.

Watch, with record speed, pass [illegible] of forty billion francs, while [illegible] cracks to higher prices. Sell your French currency short and [illegible] regret it, as you have often been told in this column. Thrift, industry and industry make French character.

Wishing prosperous as Christmas [illegible] along and 1926 progress [illegible] to die.

Reports confirming predictions [illegible] Mellon see only good business ahead, and business is good now. Last week just ended, a quarter [illegible] billion dollars' worth of bonds [illegible] issued with ease, a record for [illegible].

Observers in the Northwest see a bright spot. Use of the Mississippi [illegible] transportation will save fifty million [illegible] in freight, adding that sum [illegible] value of the farmer's export [illegible].

And the earnestness with which Secretary Hoover has worked and is working [illegible] national power and water [illegible] development deserves the [illegible] of every American.

Old friends, the British, are not as [illegible] just as the French, Germans or [illegible].

The long coal strike has crippled British industry and trade, adding to [illegible] pressure.

But the British will come through, [illegible] always do, and perhaps even [illegible] the idea that Uncle Sam is a [illegible].

PROBABLY, also, the world will soon know what there is in the secret Japan wanted to fight this country three or four years ago, thus [illegible] the naval oil reserve to be [illegible] removed from Uncle Sam's [illegible].

Secretary Wilbur refuses to produce [illegible] documents that would confirm [illegible] the defendants, plea in that [illegible].

The secretary of the navy, of course, [illegible] right on his views that United States foreign relations are more important than any criminal law suit.

The Irish Free State compels teaching [illegible] the Irish language—Gaelic—in [illegible] schools, and will make it compulsory [illegible] secondary and technical [illegible].

Free state protestants rage against [illegible] decision, although Gaelic is not a [illegible] language. It was spoken before the Christian religion started. A [illegible] objection would be the fact [illegible] can revive a dead language [illegible] life into it.

London has its first apartment house, [illegible] the Duke of Devonshire's old [illegible] town mansion. The British showed [illegible] sense when they employed an American artist, Thomas Hastings, to [illegible] for their new adventure.

Besides British is the renting system. You get your apartment on a 99 [illegible] lease. A typical American [illegible] would make life dull if he couldn't move [illegible] times in that period.

GRANGE IN COURT

"Galloping Ghost" Answers $6,000 Breach of Contract Suit

Cleveland, Dec. 13—"Red" Grange [illegible] gridiron star, denied that he [illegible] contract to appear in a football game against the Cleveland professional team here last December in answer to a suit brought against him for $6,000 for failure to play.

Grange further says that he could not have appeared even if he had been under contract, as he was injured in a game at Pittsburgh a week previously.

W. CENTER-ST REPAVING MAY BE SIDETRACKED

Abandonment of Project Seen in City Council's Economy Campaign Plans

SURVEY NOT STARTED

Opposition To Move Likely from West Center Street Improvement Association

The W. Center-st paving project, expected to be the most important feature of next year's street improvement program here, now faces probability of being sidetracked by City Council's economy campaign.

This is indicated in latest developments at City Hall, where several construction projects and other plans for 1927 have been abandoned as members of Council have made it plain that they will adopt legislation calling for expenditure of funds only in case of absolute necessity.

Should the Center-st paving work be laid aside for next year, and there is now every indication that this will be done, the taxpayers can take for granted that the economy movement is on a earnest and that the city is well on the way to lower taxes.

Need Recognized

For the Center-st improvement is generally recognized as the most urgently needed improvement at this time and if it is called for a year certain numerous other construction projects of less importance will meet the same fate.

It had been expected that the city engineering force would have a survey of Center-st completed before the first of the year in order that estimates of the probable cost of the improvement might be compiled. The survey has not been started, however, and there are no signs of Council wanting it started.

Recently several members of Council suggested that it might be well to go

COLD WAVE EXPECTED TO HIT OHIO TONIGHT

Near Blizzard Forecast for This Section of State; To Start with Rain

BULLETIN

Chicago, Dec. 13—At least fifteen were dead today in the wake of the most severe storm of the winter, which was accompanied by rapidly dropping temperatures and blinding snow throughout widely separated sections of the Northwest and middle West.

Snow, with a sharp drop in the temperature, is due to hit Ohio tonight. From the forecast of the weatherman today, it appeared that he long looked-for cold wave, to gladden the coal dealers, was on the way.

The weather disturbance, according to the prediction will start locally with more rain. The drop in the temperature tonight will change this to snow, which will continue on Tuesday. The mercury is due to continue dropping tonight and Tuesday. Strong northwest winds are headed toward Ohio, to drive the snow ahead of it, making a neat blizzard.

The weather conditions a year ago were almost the same, and the same cold wave that hit this section a year ago is coming along again on schedule. A year ago today the temperature was 17 degrees, dropping overnight to a low mark of 23.

Yesterday the mercury went to 38 above for high and dropped to 36 degrees last night. Today the mercury climbed above the 10 degree mark, and it is due to take a sharp drop tonight.

MERCURY TO DROP TO 10 ABOVE TONIGHT

Columbus, Dec. 13—A cold wave is scheduled to hit Ohio tonight and will last a couple of days with a minimum temperature of 10 degrees above zero, it was announced at the United States Weather Bureau here today.

The mercury in western and central Ohio is expected to drop to 10 degrees above tonight, the minimum temperature extending to the other sections of the state Tuesday.

The forecast calls for rain, turning to snow tonight and snow flurries Tuesday.

HOLD FAKE HUBBY

Girl Dying From Bullet Wound Implicates Man

Youngstown, Dec. 13—Following the death here today of Ethel Hinzdell, 19, who was found lying on a sidewalk five days ago with a bullet wound near her heart, police detained John R. Line.

Detectives say Line has admitted that he tricked the girl into a fake marriage, presenting her with a spurious certificate.

Miss Hinzdell told police who found her that she had shot herself. Later she implicated Line.

Aged Veteran Attempts to Suicide in Capitol Rotunda

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—John W. Caldwell, an aged war veteran, who came to the United States Soldiers' Home here several years ago from California, chose the rotunda of the capitol as the scene of attempted suicide.

He shot himself through the head and is dying at Casualty Hospital.

A bankbook showing $3,000 savings in a Berkeley, Calif., bank and a card asking that Arthur Caldwell, 2709 Channing Way, Berkeley, be notified, were found in his clothing.

There were also papers showing he had a daughter, Miss Mabel E. Caldwell, of Banning, Calif.

ACQUITTAL OR HUNG JURY IN OIL CASE, BELIEF

Counsel for Government and Defense Make Plea on Instruction of Jury

Washington, Dec. 13—With the jury excluded, opposing counsel in the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial this morning made their "prayers" to Justice A. A. Hoehling as to the manner in which the jury is to be instructed when the case finally is placed in their hands.

Frank Hogan, for the defense, made more than 40 points; Owen J. Roberts made about 30 for the government.

Hogan asked the court for a directed verdict of acquittal, but Hoehling overruled it.

Upon the opening of court this morning, Roberts launched into a three-hour argument before the jury, seeking to convince them that the former secretary of the interior and the millionaire oil man are guilty of conspiracy to defraud the government of naval oil lands worth millions of dollars.

Tomorrow the case will be entrusted to the jury after the defense concludes its final three hours of argument and Atlee Pomerene closes for the government.

In the opinion of those following the trial, much will depend upon the arguments insofar as the jury's verdict is concerned. It is generally predicted there will either be hung jury or a verdict of acquittal.

SHARP STREET FIGHTING BREAKS OUT IN ICHANG

Cantonese Troops Pouring Into City, Looting Freely, Clashing With Troops

Shanghai, Dec. 13 — Sharp street fighting has broken out in Ichang, according to reports from Hankow today, as a result of the Cantonese troops under General Yang Sen pouring into the city and looting freely, ignoring the orders of Yang Sen.

The looters are reported clashing continuously with the troops garrisoned there.

Yang Sen is reported to be leaving for Szechuan, while his subordinate, Liu Chin-Shan, has already fled to Chung King.

One hundred and forty minor officials of the nationalist government at Canton were due to arrive at Hankow today.

General Wu Pei Fu, of the northern forces, has appointed General Tien Wei Chun as field commander to oppose the advance of Feng Yuh Siang's troops who are reported to be driving the northern forces under General Lin Chen Hua from Tungkwan toward Shenchow, menacing Wu Pei Fu's lines.

Reports from Chuchow, Chekiang, indicate that although the Cantonese are massing their forces there, they do not intend to start their drive toward Shanghai until January. The loyalty of the Chekiang soldiers is doubted, the belief here being that they will join the Cantonese forces.

COLUMBUS MAN BADLY HURT IN RAIL MISHAP

Wesley J. Scheider, Hocking Valley Brakeman, Sustains Internal Injuries

Wesley J. Scheider, 102 Ogden-av, Columbus, is in a serious condition at City Hospital today as a result of a severe fall about 2 o'clock this morning when the Hocking Valley train, on which he was employed as brakeman, broke loose from the engine as it passed the Silver-st crossing. He sustained a fractured left shoulder, injuries about his back and internal injuries.

It is thought that the coupling connecting the engine and train pulled loose and that the jar caused by the automatic setting of airbreaks, caused Scheider to be thrown into the caboose against the locker and to the floor. No other person was injured in the accident.

FARM HAND FURNISHES OLSON COMPLICITY HINT

"Hard To Stick to Truth" Is Word from Sick Bed

Prairie Du Chien, Wis., Dec. 13—Suspicion of complicity in the slaying of Clara Olson, 22, turned again today toward the household of Erdman Olson, 18, her sweetheart, not a relative, following what authorities believe was a damaging admission by Edwin Knutson, a farm hand.

Knutson, employed by Albert Olson, father of the missing youth, today in a conscious moment declared from the sick bed where he was lying dangerously ill it was hard to "stick to the truth if you knew what Albert Olson knows."

Evar Hedderloe, uncle of the farm hand, besought him to "stick to the truth" while discussing the slaying of the expectant mother, whose body, skull bashed in, was found lying face down in a shallow grave.

Albert Olson has steadfastly denied all knowledge of the slaying and his son's whereabouts.

Knutson, former friend of Clara, was believed to know more than he told authorities and District Attorney J. S. Earle today said he thought Knutson was about to "break".

Knutson collapsed following a searching examination by officials who believed the story he told at the inquest was not complete.

SHOWDOWN NEAR OVER AFFAIRS IN NICARAGUA

Entire American Policy of Assumed Guardianship Over Western Countries at Stake

DIAZ MAKES APPEAL

President of Southern Republic Charges Calles Government Is "Bolshevistic"

Washington, Dec. 13 A showdown is rapidly approaching in the serious sub surface conflict that has been raging for months between the United States and Mexico over affairs in Nicaragua.

Every diplomat in Washington particularly the South and Central Americans, is watching the situation with rapt attention, for there is at stake to entire American policy of assumed guardianship over the countries of the western hemisphere.

The appeal of Adolpfo Diaz, the American backed president of Nicaragua, for the formation of a Central American bloc against Mexico which was broadcast to the world Sunday has brought the showdown appreciably nearer, in the opinion of diplomats here. Diaz put into definite form the charges that the State Department has long been employing covertly against Mexico i. e. that the Calles government is "bolshevistic and communistic," and that it is aiming at the incubation of Moscow's political doctrines throughout the little republics to the south.

Opposes Invasion

"My government," said Diaz "does not attack the political tendencies and policies now so notable in Mexico, such as laws violating private property rights, communism and the persecution of religion, insofar as the policies are limited to Mexico.

"My government, however, is firmly resolved to oppose the efforts of the Mexican government to introduce these

BERNSTEEN CONTINUING CAMPAIGN ON COURTS

Books, Records of Four Cuyahoga County Squires Seized Today

Cleveland, Dec. 13 The books and records of four more squires' courts were seized here today by A. E. Bernsteen, United States district attorney, whose recently inaugurated drive against alleged corruption in justices' courts resulted Saturday in the indictment of 39 person.

"I do not say that every mayor and justice of the peace in Cuyahoga County is crooked in dry law enforcement proceedings, but I am convinced that there are still several justices' courts in this county which are corrupt," Bernsteen declared today.

The indictments returned Saturday charge that justices of the peace and their raiders caused bootleggers to be brought into their courts where they were fined and the money "split" without being turned in to proper authorities.

COUNCILMEN TO ADJOURN SESSION UNTIL THURSDAY

Several Members Unable To Attend Meeting Scheduled for Tonight

Although tonight is the scheduled time for the semi-monthly meeting of City Council, no business will be transacted and the session will be adjourned until Thursday night, when several important legislative matters will be acted upon, members stated today.

Adjournment will be necessary tonight because other engagements will prevent R. E. Prettyman, chairman of the finance committee, and City Solicitor Grant E. Mouser, Jr., from being present. It is essential that these two officials be on hand. Councilmen say, because of the fact that the Municipal Court clerk-hire ordinance and other important propositions will come up for consideration.

The Municipal Court ordinance is the one which will fix the number of assistants for Judge-elect William R. Martin and also designate their salaries. Mr. Martin several weeks ago announced a list of six appointees but Council in a recent caucus decided to cut the number down to three.

HALTS APPOINTMENT

Governor Small Declares He'll Not Fill McKinley Post At Once

Springfield, Ills., Dec. 13—Refusing to confirm reports that he would appoint Col. Frank L. Smith as successor to the late senator William B. McKinley, Governor Len Small today declared he would not act for some time on the appointment.

Reports were general that Smith, who beat McKinley in the November elections, would receive the appointment so that he could immediately face insurgents and Democrats who have announced they will oppose his seating because of heavy primary expenditures.

PAT M'DERMOTT ... GOES ON TRIAL FOR MELLETT'S MURDER

PAT M'DERMOTT

JOHN H. POWELL MAY BE NAMED CLERK OF COURT

Judge-Elect Martin's Plan for New Municipal Tribunal Indefinite

Plan of William R. Martin, judge elect of Marion's Municipal Court, following decision of council to limit him to a force of three assistants, still are indefinite, according to information available today. Mr. Martin will be out of the city several days while on a trip to Toledo and Detroit, where he is gathering information regarding Municipal court procedure, and his program for organizing his court and corps of aids will not be known until after he returns.

Before leaving on his trip, however, he indicated that John H. Powell, 701 Hermont might be appointed as chief clerk of the court should Joseph M. Justice remain firm in his determination to refuse the appointment. Justice was Mr. Martin's original choice but Saturday announced that he would not accept the place at the $4,500 salary decided upon by Council.

Powell, who is an employe of the Oregon Co., was named as deputy clerk in the list of six appointees announced several weeks ago by the judge elect.

The Municipal Court clerk-hire ordinance is scheduled for adoption by Council at an adjourned session Thursday night. No changes have been made, a member of Council said today, in the program agreed upon at a conference held last week, when only three of the six assistants requested by the judge elect were named in the preliminary draft of the ordinance. These three are to be a clerk, bookkeeper and one bailiff. The judge elect had planned on a force consisting of a clerk, deputy clerk, bookkeeper, file clerk, and typist and two bailiffs.

The ordinance will also authorize appointment of an assistant City Solicitor to act as Municipal Court prosecutor. George T. Green, who is to succeed Grant L. Mouser as City Solicitor on Jan. 3, is expected to announce this appointment shortly after Council adopts the ordinance.

CAR RUNS INTO TRAIN; ARRESTED, FINED $25

E. J. McNeal Pleads Guilty to Charge of Reckless Driving; Blames Fog

As a result of his automobile, a Ford coupe, in which he and two other men were riding, having crashed into a Pennsylvania freight train at the N. Main-st crossing near Crystal Lake Park, about 8:30 o'clock Sunday night, E. J. McNeal, 269 Marion, was fined $25 today in the court of Mayor Earl R. Hazen on a charge of reckless driving.

The machine was badly wrecked, the top being torn off and a wheel demolished, but McNeal and his occupants were uninjured with the exception of a few bruises. The names of his companions could not be learned.

McNeal pleaded guilty to reckless driving, and admitted that he was probably driving too fast for safety, police report. He said, however, that failure of his brakes to work properly was the primary cause of the crash.

The heavy fog which enveloped Marion and vicinity during most of the night had started to form and this was also a contributing factor to the accident, McNeal and his companions say.

Widow of Slain Publisher Takes Stand in Trial

Mrs. Mellett Tells Story of Tragic Murder of Her Husband as Guards Battle with Huge Crowd in Corridors of Canton Courthouse

TRIAL OF PAT M'DERMOTT GETS UNDER WAY

Prosecutor McClintock Declares Victim Was Killed Because of His Editorial Campaign Against Bootleggers; Outlines Case Before Stark County Jury

COURTHOUSE, Canton, Dec. 13—Mrs. Florence Mellett, youthful widow of the slain publisher of the Canton Daily News, this afternoon took the witness stand to add her bit of testimony to that which the state of Ohio has prepared against Patrick E. McDermott, accused conspirator in her husband's death plot.

Dressed almost entirely in black, the slain publisher's widow took the stand and in a quiet voice gave her name and said she now lived in Indianapolis, Ind.

Little Martha Jane, one of the four fatherless Mellett children, accompanied her to the witness stand. The little girl gazed about the courtroom in innocent wonderment.

Meantime, guards mobilized from deputy sheriffs and police officers standing on tables in the court corridors, battled with a huge crowd and threatened to use night clubs in an effort to keep the mob from rushing the courtroom.

In a voice that trembled and shook with emotion, Mrs. Mellett told her story from the witness stand today.

"I was standing near the kitchen with Mrs. Walter Vail, a friend, when I heard the shots.

"One of them went through the kitchen window and narrowly missed me," she said, struggling heavily to keep back the tears.

She told how her husband's lifeless body was carried to the house and Dr. Maxwell was summoned.

After describing their family social activities for nearly a week before the murder, Mrs. Mellett was cross-examined by Defense Attorney Homer Durand.

Received Warning

"Did you ever receive any telephone warnings as you say your husband did?" he asked.

"Yes, I received one late in spring," she answered.

"Any later than that?"

"No."

Durand switched to another question.

"Did you call the police following the shooting of your husband?" he asked.

"What was the use of calling the police?" she answered.

"Why do you say that?" Durand demanded.

"Because my husband didn't think much of the police protection here," she retorted. "He thought that Canton, Ohio, was not a decent place for a man and his family to live in."

"He said so in his newspaper, too, didn't he?" Durand asked.

"I don't know," was the reply.

Mrs. Mellett Excused

When asked if she ordered any police officers out of her house following the murder, Mrs. Mellett said she told three Canton police officers to "get out and get to work—this is no place to work on this affair."

Mrs. Mellet was excused subject to being called later.

Mrs. Walter Vail was the next witness called.

Mrs. Vail, after telling of the time and situation in the Mellett home shortly before and after the murder, said that the publisher was warned on the Sunday before the crime that three men had been lurking about his home.

"After answering the telephone that evening, he told us that someone had phoned about three men hanging around the house," she said.

Mellett was killed because of his editorial campaign against bootleggers, and McDermott was one of those who conspired against him, declared Prosecutor C. B. McClintock, "in outlining his case to the alleged key man's jury at the opening of the trial of McDermott for Mellett's murder today."

McClintock used less than 20 minutes in making his initial statement.

McClintock spoke slowly and without oratorical gestures.

Went to Massillon

"Some time prior to the sixteenth of July, Patrick E. McDermott, met Steve Kascholk," McClintock slowly stated.

"Pat told him he had a good friend in Massillon by the name of Ben Rudner. They went to Massillon and stayed there two days," McClintock continued.

He declared that he would show later that Pat made it a point to see Ben Rudner often while in Massillon.

"On July 9," said the mild-mannered prosecutor, "McDermott, with Kascholk, got into a car with Louis Mazer and Ben Rudner and drove to Canton.

"A certain German police dog will be identified with that ride later," said the prosecutor.

Result of Conspiracy

Still without the slightest bit of display, McClintock stated that:

"Mellett was killed as the result of

BROTHERS SIT IN COURT WITH "PAT"

Courthouse, Canton, Dec. 13 — Brothers of the murdered and accused sat within touching distance of each other as the trial of Pat E. McDermott opened today.

Bernard McDermott, who negotiated with the state authorities for Pat's surrender, sat nervous and worn looking as the court opened.

Directly behind him sat Lloyd Mellett, brother of the murdered publisher, with a serious and determined appearance.

OHIO MAY HAVE 'SHORT BALLOT,' VOTE MACHINES

Legislative Elections Committee To Recommend Referendum Resolutions

Columbus, Dec. 13—That the Ohio legislature here this winter will be asked to provide for the "short ballot" and for use of voting machines at elections in the Buckeye State is the announcement made here today by Secretary of State Thad Brown.

Brown said that the joint legislative committee on elections, of which he is chairman, expects to recommend that the legislature adopt resolutions calling for submission at the statewide elections next November of proposed amendments to the Ohio constitution which will provide for the "short" ballot and for use of voting machines by those election boards desiring to use them.

Brown said it was planned to elect the governor, lieutenant governor and auditor for four year terms each and make all other state officers appointive. The governor and lieutenant governor now are chosen for two year terms and the auditor for a four year term.

ILLINOIS BRISTLES AS GANG FEUD KILLS MAYOR

West City Official Shot to Death As Gunmen Call Him to Door

Benton, Ill., Dec. 13—Two counties in southern Illinois bristled with armament today following the latest outbreak of gang warfare which claimed Joe Adams, mayor of West City, as a victim.

Adams was shot to death by two gunmen who called him to the door of his home on the pretext of delivering a letter. The killers, unidentified, then fled to a waiting automobile and escaped.

The shooting occurred in Franklin County, adjoining "bloody" Williamson, the battle ground of bitter feuds that have flared forth for varying degrees of destructiveness during the last two years.

The killing of Adams, as well as seven previous killings, is attributed by authorities to the feud between the Birger and Shelton factions, rival bootleg gangs. Adams was said to have been aligned with the Shelton crowd. He was the second mayor to fall victim in the gang war.

Jeff Stone, mayor of Colp, Ills., in Williamson County, was assassinated on Nov. 7, last, when he walked into a machine gun ambuscade.

Money in Capitol Building for Greek Restaurant Man

Eating Houses for Senators and Representatives Give Poor Food, Service

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—"Eats," at the seat of the United States government, are nothing to brag about.

Congress might naturally be expected to feed itself well.

CHARLES STEWART

Parliament does, in England. It's described, as to its restaurant, as the best and cheapest "club" in Europe. This isn't an exaggeration.

I don't say the congressional restaurants are the worst and most expensive in America, but I do say that their fodder is mighty mediocre, their service rather less than that, and their customers never would pay such prices for such chow at any ordinary beanery.

THERE are four of these feeding stations in the Capitol Building: A restaurant exclusively for senators and their guests; a restaurant exclusively for representatives and their guests; a restaurant reserved for members of the press and the capitol staff, and a public restaurant.

There is also a restaurant each in the Senate and House Office Buildings. There isn't much to choose among them.

TAKE luncheon, for instance:

Each restaurant serves a 65-cent lunch and a 75-cent lunch. There's also an a la carte bill-of-fare which can be run as high as $1 or $1.50, if the diner can stand that quantity of the kind of provender he gets.

These aren't such fancy figures, but neither is the table fancy. It's a cheap boarding house table. It will sustain life but it doesn't tempt the appetite. It isn't at all the kind of grub that anybody would suppose the lawmakers for the world's premier power would consider themselves entitled to.

ALL these restaurants are everlastingly crowded at meal time—particularly the noon meal. Senators and representatives pay off plenty of political obligations to home-town visitors by inviting the visitors to luncheon in their respective restaurants.

It's economical, from the senators' and representatives' standpoint, and there's a glamour to an out-of-town visitor—who doesn't see the check—about eating in a restaurant "for members only." What he eats is a secondary consideration, or none whatever.

Nevertheless, the crowding is uncomfortable when once the capitol's novelty has worn off. Conscious that others are waiting, you're impelled to gobble your food in a hurry and make way for new arrivals. Perhaps it's as well. It isn't anything to linger over, anyway.

THE capitol's Ethiopian waiters are the Ritz-est lot in Washington. Even senators and representatives mean nothing in their young lives. What, then, do they care for common, unofficial mortals!

They're hurried, too—anxious to keep things moving. Nobody knows what minute he'll get the contents of a soup plate down his neck.

After the first relay of customers has been served the tables always are messy. The cutlery and chinaware only get a lick and a promise from the dishwasher. But you're mixing with senators and representatives.

THE funny thing is that all these restaurants run at a loss, despite the business they do and the prices they charge for indifferent food and a grab-bag service. It must be because everything the government touches does lose. It's a cinch a Greek restaurant man could make lots of money out of them.

Those who are born without a silver spoon in the mouth may be as much "self-made" as those who come up from poverty.

Age is coming on, when one begins to snort at news he doesn't like in the newspapers. Young people skip what they don't like.

Narrow minds overlook a charitable act and search for the motive.

Behind the Screen

MARY BRIAN

MARY BRIAN is one of the most "borrowed" young women in Hollywood. When she is "between pictures" film companies are eager to obtain her services. And Famous Players-Lasky are not loth to loan her out since the borrowing company assumes the player's salary and frequently pays a bonus also. This practice is becoming exceedingly popular since a company frequently cannot find suitable vehicles for its players and they are idle for months while continuing to draw their weekly pay checks. This, of course, involves considerable expenditure.

While under contract to Paramount Miss Brian has made pictures for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, First National and she is now working on "Her Father Said No," for F. B. O. By playing frequently she is increasing her fan following and also bringing money into the Famous Players coffers.

Estelle Taylor, wife of Jack Dempsey, may be Emil Jannings' first leading lady. Rumor has it that Famous Players-Lasky officials are so pleased with her performance as "Desiree" in New York that they will make efforts to borrow her from United Artists, to whom she is under contract.

Conrad Veidt widely known foreign motion picture star, who was recently signed by Carl Laemmle under a five year contract, has returned to Europe to complete a former contract. He will be gone about two and a half months.

In order to get the proper atmosphere and surroundings in his work of adapting the Edna Ferber novel, "Show Boat", to the screen, Charles Kenyon, Universal scenarist, will leave for the middle west.

He plans to visit various spots on the Mississippi and see for himself the actual locations described by Miss Ferber.

LOANS up to $500

There's something about the jingle of loose money in a fellow's pocket that makes it spend mighty easy. For many of us, the only way to keep from dwindling away our funds for small non-essential articles is to bind ourselves to provide a certain amount each week toward the payment of some important article. That is one reason for the popularity of the time payment plan.

But contracts to purchase on time all too often are not to the advantage of the purchaser. Examine them carefully before you sign on the dotted line.

The City Loan plan offers all of the advantages, and none of the disadvantages, of other time payment contracts. With City Loan cash you can buy at the lowest price, pay out of your income, and be sure the contract you have made is not one-sided.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT NICARAGUA STARTS ON PAGE 1

ideas and practices into Nicaragua through the violent overthrow of the established and constitutional government of Nicaragua."

"My government feels that many worthy Nicaraguan, veterans of the illustrious liberal party, have in the blindness of political passion allied themselves with the forces of communism, radicalism and religious prosecution now in control and running rampant in Mexico.

"Should the government of Nicaragua fall at the hands of the Calles government of Mexico, no other Central American government would be secure from a similar fate whenever the caprice of the Mexican government might so decide."

Accuses Mexico

Diaz flatly accused the Mexican government of sponsoring filibustering expeditions to equip the liberal revolutionists with arms and ammunition.

These are the selfsame charges which State Department officials have been bringing against Mexico. Consequently, there is more than a suspicion among diplomats here that President Diaz had some help in the writing of his manifesto. The State Department has several representatives at Managua and American warships are patrolling Nicaraguan waters and marines are stationed at several points. They were responsible for placing Diaz in the presidential palace six weeks ago, and for his continuation there.

The American warships and marines were dispatched to Nicaragua ostensibly to protect American lives and property, and also for the avowed purpose of stopping gun-running from Mexico to the revolutionist Sacasa government.

Recognizes Sacasa

The Mexican foreign office cleverly checkmated this move by extending recognition to the Sacasa government as the "legal and constitutional" government of Nicaragua. Mexico is a sovereign nation and is entitled to sell arms to any recognized government in the world. Hence 2,000 rifles were landed on the east coast of Nicaragua last week under the very noses of the protecting American warships and marines. With all the legality on the side of the Mexicans, the State Department apparently did not care to risk an open clash by trying to stop the shipment.

The appeal of President Diaz to the world to come to his aid immediately followed.

The Diaz manifesto is expected to create intense resentment in Mexico City and Washington is anticipating the accusation that the document was inspired, if not actually written, by the State Department's representatives.

It will, in any event, impose a further strain on the already strained relations between Mexico City and Washington.

PREPARE FOR THIRD YEAR OF SCHICK TESTS

Permission Slips To Be Distributed to Parents in County This Week

Preparations for the third application of the Schick test for diphtheria in the county schools are now under way in the office of Dr. N. Sifritt, county health commissioner. This will be the third year in which the effective method of decreasing the number of deaths from diphtheria has been used in the county schools. The tests were first given in 1924, followed up with a retest of all those tested in 1924 and testing of new students in 1925. This year those who were first tested last year, and all new students in the county schools, whose parents give permission will be tested and immunized.

Permission slips, for the signature of parents or guardians will be distributed this month to all county schools. The tests and immunization will be given early in January. Children whose parents or guardians do not sign the slips are not given the tests. The first year the Schick tests were given 75 per cent of the children were tested with parents permission. Last year the percentage was higher, and this year it is expected that there will be very few refusals to allow the Schick tests to be given.

Explanation slips accompany each permission blank. It is explained that the Schick test is a harmless method of determining whether or not the child is susceptible to diphtheria. If the test shows a natural resistance of the child to the disease, no further treatment is given. If the test shows that the child is susceptible to diphtheria then three injections of an immunizing serum are given. This is supplied without cost to the parents. More than 150,000 children have been tested and more than 90,000 immunized in Ohio.

RADIO OPERATOR MARKING TIME; AWAITS KEYES

Ormiston Not Arrested Although Under Indictment in California

Chicago, Dec. 13—Kenneth G. Ormiston marked time today as he awaited the somewhat doubtful visit here of District Attorney Asa Keyes, of Los Angeles, to interview him in connection with the Aimee Semple McPherson case. The former Angelus Temple radio announcer, whose five months' retirement from public view ended last Wednesday when he was discovered living under an assumed name in Harrisburg, Pa., came to Chicago voluntarily to consult his attorney, Edward H. S. Martin and "to await developments."

Although under indictment in California, charged with subornation of perjury and conspiracy to defeat justice in connection with the mysterious disappearance last May of Aimee Semple McPherson, Ormiston has not been arrested. Chicago authorities do not intend to arrest him, it is said, until a fugitive warrant is received. He expresses himself entirely willing to surrender to anyone with such a warrant. But Ormiston will fight to the last ditch, he says, any attempt to extradite him to California.

Has Nothing To Fear

"I have committed no crime," he said today. "Consequently, I have nothing to fear. And while on the subject of crime, since when is it a crime for any woman to defend her good name in California?"

Ormiston laughed when he read of an "important discovery" in Oakland, Calif. He said:

"I see they have found my automobile. Well that is rather rapid work. It took them just as long to find that as it did to find me. And they found it where I left it, six months ago, in a public garage.

"As for the red hairs reported found in the car, my father was there when the car was examined. He assured me the red hair did not originate in the car, but was probably 'planted' there."

Stresemann Returns to Berlin with Partial Victory in Geneva

Geneva, Dec. 13—Herr Stresemann returns to Berlin today with at least partial victory to use in staving off a threatened political crisis.

Herr Stresemann came to Geneva demanding that interallied military control in Germany end and the League of Nations take over this work. The demand has been met for the interallied control will end on Jan. 31, 1927, but Herr Stresemann had to make concessions to win this point, having agreed to submit the question of the eastern fortresses in Germany and the question of the manufacture and export of war materials to arbitration. It remains to be seen whether the German public will support the position of Herr Stresemann.

M. Briand and Sir Austen Chamberlain, departed for their respective homes, well satisfied with the work done, M. Briand having apparently scored a victory by forcing the Poincare government to accede to his views on the matter in question.

THEFT OF FUR COAT CHARGED TO WOMAN

Cincinnati, Dec. 13 — Miss Pearl Hart, 29, Cleveland, Ohio, alleged by police to be queen of shoplifters, was being held here today charged with grand larceny.

A fur coat valued at $2,000, which disappeared from a department store here, was turned over to detectives by the attorneys for Miss Hart.

ahead with the Center-st work by resurfacing the thoroughfare instead of installing an entirely new paving. This, it was pointed out, would be much less costly than tearing out the old paving and putting in a new one and for that reason would not seriously retard progress of the municipal economy movement.

Little consideration was given the resurfacing proposal, however. Because of the fact that W. Center-st is Marion's most important business thoroughfare and has probably twice as much heavy traffic as any other street, officials say that resurfacing would not hold up and as a consequence would in the long run be more expensive than a new pavement.

Practically Assured

So when Center-st is improved, and this is not likely to be for at least two years, it will be completely reconstructed. That is practically assured.

Plans of Council to hold the project over another year are likely to meet with opposition from the West Center Street Improvement Association, an organization of business men and property owners recently formed to promote development in the West Side.

The W. Center-st paving and proposed extension of Mill-st from the uptown district to Leader-st are the outstanding projects now being advocated by this organization. The Center-st paving is being urged in particular. The Mill-st proposal, it is generally conceded, is one which cannot be expected to approach consummation for a number of years.

More Urgent Projects

It is certain, a survey of the present situation in municipal affairs indicates, that it will be quite a few years before Mill-st will be opened. There are numerous other improvements much more urgent which must be given attention first, officials say, and with prospects of the present economy wave continuing indefinitely, there is every reason to believe that Mill-st will stay within its present limits for a long time.

"The Mill-st extension would be a valuable improvement," one city official stated Saturday. "It would take much of the heavy traffic and congestion away from Center-st. But it looks now as though the project is little more than a dream to be realized some time in the remote future."

CHILDREN'S CHRISTMAS PARTY PLANNED BY CLUB

Rotarians Make Arrangements for Entertainment at Next Meeting of Organization

The annual Christmas party of the Marion Rotary Club for children of the city will be held during the regular meeting of the club next Monday at Hotel Harding.

More than 50 children of the city will be the guests of Rotary Club members at this party. There will be a huge Christmas tree, decorated and lighted, Santa Claus will be there to help the children have a good time, and presents for every child will be handed out by Santa Claus during the party.

The Christmas party committee announced at the meeting today that all the details of the party were complete. Every member has either chosen or been assigned to a child to bring to the party, and from the response from members it appeared that there would be a perfect attendance, and that the party would be one of the best ever held by the club.

The Rotary Club was entertained this noon by a group of four girls, dressed to represent four nationalities, who sang during the luncheon. They sang several Rotary songs, and then gave a short selection, using the names of club members in parodies. The girls were Ruth Brown, representing Scotland, Mary Heininger, representing Holland, Dorothy Garvin, representing Spain and Janet Trott, representing Japan. Jessie Brown gave a piano solo.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT
M'DERMOTT TRIAL

a conspiracy of bootleggers and we will show McDermott was one of those conspirators."

Defense Attorney E. L. Mills then started his opening outline.

Mills, speaking in a voice nearly inaudible from the press table, fairly shouted as he charged that his client was indicted as a result of a conspiracy between Joseph Roach, Chicago attorney, Prosecutor C. B. McClintock and other forces to force an indictment in this murder case before election.

After much objection of the state to that sort of a statement the court admonished the attorney but allowed the statement to go into the record.

Dr. T. C. McQuate, county coroner, was the first witness called.

McQuate described the nature of the weapon that caused Mellett's death.

Introduces Bullet

The bullet taken from the slain editor's head was introduced without objection as evidence. He was not cross-examined.

Dr. Guy Maxwell, personal physician to Mellett, testified briefly that he was called to the publisher's home on the night of July 16 and after a brief examination he pronounced Mellett dead. He was not cross-examined.

Ray Bechtel of the county surveyor's office, technically described how the path of the fatal bullet was traced to a point approximately 700 feet from the rear of the Mellett home. The witness was temporarily withdrawn by the state and a short recess declared.

Fred Biechele, also of the county surveyor's office, who prepared drawings of the vicinity of the Mellett home, identified maps of the crime scene.

McDermott Studies Maps

With knitted brow and faithfully working his chewing gum, McDermott studied the maps as they were placed on a tripod before the jury.

Bechtel, when recalled to the stand, stated that there was no house constructed, nor under construction, on the vacant lots opposite the Mellett home.

When the jury viewed the premises last Friday, a small house apparently recently completed, stood on the vacant lot.

Court then adjourney until 1 o'clock, when Prosecutor C. B. McClintock announced that Mrs. Mellett would take the stand.

Christmas Is Goal

That every effort will be made to complete the McDermott trial before Christmas was evident today when Judge Edwin W. Diehl, presiding over the trial, announced that court would remain in session longer than usual to hear the case.

According to the court's announcement, the court will open at 8:45 o'clock every morning, adjourn for luncheon at 11:45 o'clock. The afternoon sessions will last from 1 to 4:45 o'clock.

One brief recess in the morning and another in the afternoon will be allowed, Judge Diehl stated.

GOES ON TRIAL

GIRL INNOCENT?

Dan Moody's Stenographer Declares She Was Not Bandit

Austin, Texas, Dec. 13—With a declaration of innocence on her lips, Miss Rebecca Bradley, 22, stenographer in the office of Dan Moody, attorney general and governor elect, was to be arraigned in district court here today on a charge of robbery with firearms.

She was arrested here Saturday night after she held up two bank employes and escaped with $1,000 from the Farmers National Bank at Rule, south of here.

Following the arrest of Miss Bradley, who soon was to receive her master's degree from the University of Texas here, all but $80 of the loot was recovered.

Mr. Andrews To Be Commended.

It is something of a relief to note that General Lincoln C. Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, is using a decidedly higher quality of grey matter than some of his underlings. There have been many instances to indicate this, the most recent being his nullification of the order under which the customs authorities in Boston destroyed certain shipments of high-class foreign magazines because they contained some liquor advertisements, not advertisements run in the hope of making sales in this country, for there is no way of getting liquor into this country save by smuggling, but advertisements for the patronage of consumers abroad.

Over here in the United States, the great majority of the better class of newspapers reject liquor advertisement, but there is not the sentiment in foreign lands against liquor that there is here. The majority of foreigners use liquor. It is the exceptional foreigner who does not, and thus liquor advertisements are run by magazines and newspapers the same as advertisements of any other line of goods in daily use.

As the liquor advertised in foreign lands can not be imported into this country, the order could have been of no aid to the dry cause over here. If it had held, foreign magazine publishers either would have had to make over their forms, which would have made the cost of their publications practically prohibitive, or abandon all attempts to sell their magazines here.

General Andrews, we are happy to say, has given evidence that he is more concerned about the spirit of the law than the latter. He is not in pursuit of the man with the half pint in his pocket, but is after the manufacturers and jobbers of the half pints. He wants the big fellows apprehended. Nor is he in sympathy with such construction of the Volstead law as that which resulted in the silly order of one of his force in Washington. There has been in the past enforcement of the Volstead law far too much straining at a gnat and swallowing an entire menagerie. General Andrews insists that this cease. He wants the law enforced along sensible lines, not in such a manner as to make it a thing for ridicule, and he proposes that it shall be enforced upon legal lines as well. Breaking into homes without due process of law must cease, according to his orders, and search warrants must not be issued without reasonable justification for them. In other words, the terrorist methods in the raiding of homes is to cease.

Had such policies as these adopted by General Andrews obtained from the first, there would have been no more liquor consumed than there is now, and possibly far less. It is a certainty that, under such conditions, much of the prejudice which today obtains would be without ground for existence.

Opportunity Is Everywhere.

It has long been the practice of our spellbinders—particularly our political spellbinders when "pointing with pride" during campaign times or at times when they are looking ahead to future campaigns, which is pretty much all the time—to refer to our country as "this glorious land of opportunity." Unquestionably, ours is a land of opportunity and they are not outside the bounds of fact when they refer to it as such. Probably there is no land on the face of the globe where so many or so great opportunities are offered to the average man. Our domain is so extensive, our national resources so great, our riches so amazing, our land so comparatively new, that naturally there are far more opportunities here in America than in lands where the population is denser and the development is older.

But, while the opportunities offered by many lands are neither so many nor so great, there is no civilized, Christian country where opportunity is lacking to those who are made of the right kind of stuff and have the mental acumen to take advantage of them. There are personalities with the ability to find opportunity almost anywhere. There are personalities with the ability, when they find them lacking, to make opportunities.

Our attention was attracted to this fact by the announcement of the finding of a railroad pay-book at Lugano, on the Swiss-Italian frontier which reveals that Benito Mussolini was a "diligent and steady worker" even when his employment as a stone mason twenty years ago on the Monte Bre railway brought him what in our money would be but fifty cents a day.

An Englishman, Arthur L. Stead, writing in a recent number of the New York Central magazine, refers to this former humble stone mason as "the moving spirit" in "what has proved probably the most successful post-war rehabilitation plan in all Europe," as it unquestionably has been.

"Under the Fascist regime in Italy," Mr. Stead says, "there would seem to have been abolished a great deal that the American and the Englishman instinctively incline to—as, for example, a democratic policy, a freely-elected parliament and liberty to the press. To Mussolini, however, must go credit for much that is progressive and helpful in his country's cause, and the wonderfully energizing effect of the new order of things is nowhere more apparent than in the railroad field.

"To turn a railroad deficit of $60,000,000 into a profit of $10,000,000, while at the same time transforming an indifferent railroad personnel into an enthusiastic body of willing workers, as has been accomplished in Italy in three years, is certainly a remarkable achievement."

We here in America may not approve of the method Mussolini followed, but there can be no question but what the man who changes an anarchy-ridden land, where all was sloth and closely verging upon despair, into a busy, energetic, industrious nation within but a few years has performed an achievement, even though to do so he has made himself one of the most absolute dictators of history. Today Mussolini is recognized as one of the three great figures of Europe, the other two being Kemal Pasha and Primo de Rivera. Twenty years ago a stone mason working for fifty cents a day, today recognized as one of the three great figures of Europe, if not the greatest—certainly Mussolini has found, or made, opportunity in the Old world.

And there are many others who have found or made opportunities there- hundreds and thousands. We have cited those notable cases herein, for the reason that they are at the present foremost in the public eye, but columns could be filled and yet the end of the long list would be far away, were we to attempt to give those of today who have attained success in industry, business, science, art, medicine, literature and many other lines, who possibly have never been within our domain.

Possibly we have not made our meaning clear, but what we wish to bring out is this: opportunity is everywhere. It is not limited to one land or one people. No doubt we more often find it here in our own land, but we haven't a corner on it. The right man will find it, or make it, no matter where he may be.

Perhaps no better measure of the man may be had than that offered by a Washington correspondent, who says that Senator Oscar Underwood voluntarily retires from the senate because "he is out of touch with modern hypocrisy." There's no denying that the senate is hardly the place for a man like that.

"Away with rifles, machine guns, and cannon!" said Aristide Briand, possibly figuring that they were needed a lot more down along the Italian frontier than in Paris.

UNCLE SAM: "I CAN'T HEAR YOU, BOYS!"

Too Much Speeding Ages Organs.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Not long ago I saw these glaring headlines in a newspaper:

How To Keep Down
Your Repair Bills
By Proper Driving.

Of course, the article related to automobiles and not to human beings. But why not apply the same advice to people?

Improper driving of the body creates troubles which send men and women to the hospital for repairs.

Some sub-heads in the newspaper article announced that "too much speeding, and too quick starting and stopping 'age' the car. 'Coasting' is dangerous."

All this applies to us, too. We are not constructed for physical abuse any more than automobiles are. We should take similar precautions to keep from aging. Exactly the same rules apply to us as to automobiles.

When I see a young man going along without exercising moral or physical restraint, I tremble for him. He is coasting, racing for a fall. He is in greater danger than the coasting automobile.

As we get along in life, beyond the meridian, we can not stop and start with the quickness and harmlessness of youthful days. Our starting machinery is stiffer and our brakes are rusty.

The elasticity of youth permits young folks to speed along for a few years with no apparent harm to the mechanism. But older folks simply can not speed. If they do, something snaps and chronic invalidism results.

Coupling pins and links, as well as other materials made of iron and used in the railroad equipment, become "crystalized." Such pieces of metal become brittle and unsafe. An automobile which has rendered good service for a long time begins to break down, the springs snap and other parts fall apart. They have "aged."

We are like that. Our tissues grow hard, the bones become brittle, the blood-vessel walls lose their elasticity.

When these conditions are present we must slow down. Quick starting and stopping are really dangerous. Stress and strain suddenly applied may cause a break somewhere.

You know you can coax an old automobile and by good treatment keep it running for years after its age makes it an antique. The same care applied to the human body will permit a man to live far beyond the three score years and ten. "Proper driving," proper physical conduct will keep us fit for a century.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Toy manufacturers in convention reveal some interesting facts. The value of the Christmas toys which will surprise American kiddies on the morning of the great day is estimated at $100,000,000. It's a marvelous country than can spend $100,000,000 to bring laughter to childish throats.

Even with the millions that are going to be spent there are those who will be with little money to spend this Christmas time. If you are among that number, make up the lack of present with the gift of love and kindness. If you can't make a big gift perhaps you can make a little one. Most people do not want big gifts. They just want to be remembered. Let us not forget.

The death of Charles Ringling leaves only John. He of seven brothers alone survives. The Ringlings were all successful men. With their circuses they made almost as many people happy as Santa Claus.

Few families of seven brothers now. And yet the chance of success is just as good, in or out of the circus business, as ever. Where have the big families gone?

Don't forget the heroes of the cornfield. Ira Marshall, Ohio farmer in Hardin county, last year produced a world's record crop of corn on ten acres. This year he beat his own record. The total yield is 1,886.8 bushels, or 166.86 bushels to the acre. His son, in another cornfield, was only one acre behind.

This is the kind of success we visualize when we hear about the glory of the common-place.

Good counsel that Mrs Frank Evans, woman attorney of Salt Lake City, brings to delegates in a woman's convention in Chicago.

"I am inclined to believe," she says, "that the American woman is obtaining her rights as rapidly as she is prepared for them. Now she must learn to use her privileges wisely, for nothing will break down our society more quickly than the abuse of such privileges."

Woman has put herself on a plane of equality with man. She has the rights that man used to have exclusively. She votes and goes to college and goes into business and politics. So far so good. She will do well not to push her demands too rapidly.

Vagrant Verse.

BITTERSWEET.

It's only three o'clock, and yet the gloom
Of rain-swept twilight crowds my gable room—
All save one dusty corner, where I seem
To feel a warmth within the friendly gleam,
Festooned about a ginger jar of gray,
Outpouring from a bittersweet bouquet,
Each spray bends low with helix of gaudy hue
That swung so proudly in the morning blue
The day I trespassed on forbidden ground,
Brown, slender hands tenaciously entwined
Rose crested sumach, sheltered from the wind,
And clasped swamp maples just above my head
With fingers ringed with gold and stones blood red.
(Prize jewels, these, to me, the loveliest
And gayest from the autumn treasure chest.)
Quite shamelessly I stole and bore them home,
Away from mead of friends and starflung dome.
Today, the meadow sleeps 'neath folded veils
Of fog, and rain, a thousand rasping flails,
Now revelle sounds on the window glass,
As chill winds laugh decisively, and pass.
The bittersweet, more chivalrous than I,
Smiles gallantly, nor heeds the sullen sky,
We hear, instead, tall grasses whispering,
And wanton crows on treetops gossiping.
We know, though captive in a shadowed room,
We are not bound within its winter gloom.

Q. Why is some hair naturally curly while other hair is straight? E. A.

A. The contour of the hair is circular, oval or flattened. Whether a hair is to be curly or straight is largely dependent upon its contour; the more oval or flattened it is the more it will be curled. The curliness is influenced also by the condition of the atmosphere; naturally curly hair becomes more curled when the hair is surcharged with moisture, and less so in dry weather.

J. When was the Italian majolica first made? R. H.

A. The earliest date found on an Italian luster-piece is 1480. The only men acquainted with the use of luster were Pesaro, Gubbio, and Deruta, and after a vogue of eighty years, it became a lost art, about 1570. The craft has been revived with varying success, but the new enamels can not compare in beauty with the old models. The finest specimens of majolica were made in northeastern Italy. Vases, pitchers, plates, bottles and odd-shaped flasks were the most commonly decorated objects, but tiles were sometimes made for floors and walls.

Today's Worst Story.

BY WILL ROGERS

When I was down in Virginia I heard fellows talking about Southerners being easy-going and, not very much in a h This here guy was from Alaska or somew where he said folks hustled around a bit was sore because it took Virginians so lon said to get on and off an elevator.

But there was another guy there that been around the world a bit, and he cor my friend from Alaska by telling him how going people in Holland are. He told se instances about Hollanders taking things when other folks might be excited. He about a Dutch woman that was coming the street in some little village down by sea, and one or two of the neighbor got to gossiping with her about this and They talked for a long time about how the babies weighed and how long it wo until there'd be another dance in the nei hood. 90 PER CENT IN COLLEGE ARE CALLED DUMBBELLS

Instructor in Ohio State University Department of Geography Makes Statement

A statement that 90 per cent of the college students of today are dumbells, was made recently by Professor Roderick Peattie of the department of geography at Ohio State University in an address at a fraternity scholarship night exercise.

"Several years ago," declared Professor Peattie, "Percy Marks stood on this very platform and startled the world by announcing that 50 percent of the college students were dumbells. But I disagree with him. I am quite willing to state without hesitation, that 90 percent of the students are dumbells.

In his address the professor explained that Marks had based his judgment on the fact that so few of the college and university students care for general culture.

Professor Peattie held that Ohio State had been included in the number when he estimated the intellectual ability of the college men and women.

9,400 Enrolled

At the present time nearly 9,400 students are enrolled at Ohio State University, which according to Professor Peattie, means that about 8,500 of the number are given a rating in the class of dumbells.

The city and county of Marion has 54 men and women represented at the state's largest educational institution. If the theory could be applied to such small groups, only six of the number could claim freedom from the title while the remaining 48 would be in the class named by Professor Peattie.

"The fact that some students can obtain excellent grades is not sufficient reason for classing them as intelligent people," Professor Peattie said. "The use of common sense and general culture makes a man intelligent."

It is discouraging, but temper will put as many wrinkles in the face as character.

was sick, there was no doubt about it. And, the disagreeable thing about Bill's ailment was that had a careful diagnosis been made, it would have revealed a severe and lingering case of what is known as momentary deficiency, but is, a peculiar weakness in the pocketbook.

The case was particularly dangerous at this time because pay-day had just come and gone and Bill's money had given out far too soon for comfort or convenience. So, according to custom, Bill called in consultation his wife, who after a little deliberation declared a loan of $100.00 would probably make Bill a well man, if obtained and used according to directions.

The Marion Chattel Loan Co., 130 S. State st, was decided upon as the place to have the prescription properly filled and like thousands of other patients suffering a like malady, Bill was instantly relieved. He suffers no more for he has found a remedy so effective and so easy, it is folly to neglect taking it when needed. It costs but little and is available to all.—Adv.

Addresses Thank Offering Service of Home Missionary Society

In connection with thank-offering service of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, Epworth M. E. Church Dr. B. L. George, pastor of the church, spoke on the subject "Can America Be Saved?" at the well attended service yesterday morning at the church. Rev George touched upon the work of the county, saying that "only through a definitely planned outline of work, such as is being attempted, can America with her mixed population of foreign-born, Negro and negro, as well as pure American, be saved. Government, school and church attempts to save America and her complex population have failed largely through lack of organization, Dr. George claimed.

In his sermon on the subject "Why Does God Permit the Wicked to Live?" at the church last night, Dr. George said in part "When God created man he took the risk of man's doing right or wrong, and sent the Savior into the world to counterbalance wickedness and reform sinners, and for the sole purpose of reformation God permits his sinners to live.

Living

WHAT TYPE WIFE?

Loving

IT takes all sorts of people to make the world, and a great diversity of interests and occupations to satisfy the needs of the people. As for opinions! What an unbearably stupid old place this world would be if upon every question under the sun everybody held the same views!

A certain letter which came to the desk recently started us to quick reflection. We quote from it:

"I am a better artist than some women that draw and are paid a large salary for it, but I am point ng my finger in the face of my children. I believe I have a friend who is a truer friend than some I have paid to be. You should see the home she keeps. I envy them (evidently the feminine) their We do not want to stop them. But let us off the wives and mothers!"

What word of ours could have possibly provoked such indignation? We were puzzled at first until we remembered quoting a brilliant physician's unorthodox method of making by-products a success as I adding the following reflection upon modern wives in general:—

"One wife stays home and irons and brews and mothers a little family. All honor to her. Domesticity is for some and success crowns her effort. In her health and joy of her loved ones is their devotion, there is happiness enough.

"Another wife prefers a career of good housekeeping, and refusing to consider domesticity as one of the arts by which she must live, she takes her place in the ranks of the world's economic workers. . . . Is she shirking? Is she unfair? The chances are she is performing it better because in the way that best suits her."

If this be treason against wives and mothers, then may one correspondent make the most of it! We believe we hereby pay tribute where tribute is due.

ALL honor to the woman who makes and keeps a home. She who shapes the architect of fate, a builder of human destinies. Than this there can be no more glorious calling.

But there may be more than one way to accomplish the same feat.

For this is an era of change, of evolution no less than dissolution. Few things remain exactly as they used to be. Whether they are better or whether they are worse is not the question. The fact is they are different.

Economic necessity is a modern cause with a number of result. Not a few women married for love are working for money!

Why waste time in carping criticism? With mind open to conviction let us watch and wait and hope for a wedding of the best in the old and the new—

"Not chaos-like, together crushed and bruised
But as the world harmoniously confused.
Where order in variety we see.
And where, though all things differ, all agree."

LARGE ATTENDANCE

Many Hear Sermon Sunday Night at Oakland Church

"Second Coming of Christ" was the subject of the sermon preached by Rev. H. L. Williamson at Oakland Evangelical Church last night before the largest congregation which has attended any one service at the church this fall. Nine seekers surrounded the altar making a total of 60 seekers since the opening of a revival three weeks ago.

"The second coming of Christ will be sudden, unexpected, and soon," Rev. Williamson said.

"It is prophesied in the Bible as was the first and the signs which are to precede His second coming are being rapidly fulfilled, particularly through the wickedness of the world and the indifference and worldliness of the church," Rev. Williamson said.

At the morning service, which was also well attended, Rev. Williamson spoke on the subject, "Walking in the Light." The revival will continue indefinitely.

"Blaze of Glory"

BY FRED M'ISAAC

CHAPTER XIX

Blood that sprang to my face from a wounded heart. I was bitterly wounded in my pride and self-respect, in my belief in her, and my hopes. So, after all, this was she considered me—a servant, pampered or whipped at will.

looked a bit frightened, made as if to say something; but Anderson laughed shortly, took her arm, and led her away.

"If you prefer to do your own packing, you do it well,' he said.

I was supposed to wait until the affair was over. My first impulse was to abandon the car and leave Hydeport at once. Then my pride assured me that the thing to do was to stick it out and let Abbott released me, since my position was already in. Besides, I had to close the deal for the land next day.

As far as Rose Abbott was concerned, I renounced her. Under no circumstances would I ever speak to her again. If I had to remain for two or three days longer, I should be a hired servant. It was true I had done a churlish thing; that I should, perhaps, have treated Anderson's tip so contemptuously in the presence of his hostess and my mistress; that I should have obeyed her and made some sort of apology to him since she demanded it. But nothing justified her striking me.

What an ungovernable temper she possessed! Who would imagine that such a beautiful and lovely creature could be a termagant? Despite my feelings, I couldn't help admire her beauty in her anger! How dazzlingly she had looked just as her right hand smote me on the jaw.

Apparently she thought an awful lot of G. Burton Anderson, else why had she grown so angry when I slighted him? She had either known or suspected that there was bad blood between us; that we had come to blows. How could she expect me to take a tip from the man

But she had humiliated and insulted me in front of him, and gone off with him to dance, leaving me alone with my shame and the print of five fingers on my cheek.

Undoubtedly she would expect that I would leave immediately and would not even wait to bring the party home. I would show that I could be a good servant by turning up at midnight as though nothing had happened. Tomorrow I would be a free man, and as far as Rose Abbott was concerned, she would pass out of my life.

Three hours passed miserably while I nursed my wrath to keep it warm. Eventually midnight arrived, and I drove up to the entrance of the club, sitting straight and sullen in my seat.

The party came laughing down the steps; Rose looked a trifle surprised to see me, but said nothing. Again Anderson climbed into the front seat. As the car was moving down the driveway he leaned toward me and whispered tauntingly:

"That squares me for the duck pond incident."

I managed to refrain from making an answer, but I boiled inwardly like the radiator of a Ford.

When I had unloaded the party at the door of Abbotts' I heaved a sigh of relief. Anderson had the good sense not to try to tip me again. I drove over to the garage, disposed of the car, and I climbed, unhappily, to my room.

About half an hour later the telephone downstairs rang, and I answered it.

Helma's voice said:

"Miss Abbott wishes you to come to the house.

I hesitated, but decided to obey orders, and with reluctant feet moved over to the residence. Rose was standing at the top of the steps. She made a gorgeous picture in her evening dress with a red rose in her dark hair, and she was in a serious mood.

"I sent for you, William," she said quietly. "I suppose you are leaving in the morning."

"Yes."

"It was decent of you to wait to bring us home."

"Thank you."

"I'm sorry I struck you." . . . .

To this I made no reply, I couldn't.

"I lost my temper because you wouldn't obey me when I made a point of it. You humiliated me in front of my guest. I am ashamed that I struck you. Will you forget it?"

"I looked her squarely in the eye. "Never so long as I live."

"Ooh!" she said, her quick temper beginning to rise. "So that's your attitude. I have demeaned myself to apologize and you refuse to accept it."

"You said forget it. It's impossible."

"Then there is nothing to be done about it?"

"Good night, Miss Abbott."

"Good night," she said; and then her tongue, always mocking, got away from her.

"I'll see that you get a good character reference for your next place."

"I'll never again put myself in a position where I can be beaten for refusing a tip."

"You know it wasn't that," she exclaimed. "You have refused the money. You insulted him and me by burning it."

"I have already been punished for that," I said bitterly. "Good night, Miss Abbott."

"You are impossible," she declared, stamping her foot on the boards, and, turning, she ran into the house.

So ended what I anticipated would be our last interview; but there was another and more bitter one in store for me next day. The new chauffeur arrived in the morning, which I spent showing him his duties. About noon I was summoned to the house, where the real estate transaction was completed in the presence of Glosfer, who was Abbott's attorney. At its conclusion they handed me a check for twenty-five thousand dollars, which I folded and placed in my inside pocket. I had resumed my ordinary clothing. In the hallway I encountered Helma, who barred my passage.

"You are leaving, William?"

"Yes, Helma; I've quit."

"I'm sorry. You are going to stay in the village—yes?"

"No; I'm going to Boston, I think."

"Oh," she said a little forlornly, "I don't think I shall like the new chauffeur. I am sorry you are going."

"I am sorry not to see you again. Goodby."

"You are not sorry," she said petulantly. "You don't care at all. You take up my time and talk nice things to me, and now you walk off like this."

"I didn't make love to you, and you know it, Helma. We were just good friends, so let it go at that."

"All right," she said, with a smile. "After all, you think too well of yourself."

There was a cluster of guests on the porch when I passed out of the house. Rose detached herself from them and came toward me.

"Adieu", she said. "I want to speak to you."

I bowed and waited for her. She led me into a small room opening off the hall, and then turned on me.

"Last night," she said, "I demeaned myself by apologizing to you for that blow, and you were ungracious enough to refuse to accept it. If I had known then what I know now, I would not have dreamed of excusing myself. The Blow was deserved, and you should have had a horsewhipping as well." You are a completely contemptible character, and I hope I never set eyes on you again."

The vehemence with which she spoke and the glitter in her eye convinced me that she meant what she said.

"I'll try to fix it so you won't," I retorted.

"My father told me this morning exactly what you had done. You listened to a conversation between himself and another guest, took advantage of it to hold him up for twenty-five thousand dollars. Then, eaten up with your own importance, you became arrogant and insulting to my guests and myself.

"You never would have dared to burn that dollar bill if you hadn't been set up with your ill-gotten gains. I want to tell you that a man who would take a position as a servant to earn a living will always be a servant at heart, and no matter how successful you may be as a result of what you cheated my father out of, you will always be a boorish, badly trained servant to me. Now you can go."

I knew, of course, that her father had told her a highly colored and one-sided story of the transaction between us; but if she thought me capable of being dishonorable as well as boorish I wasn't going to defend myself.

"Miss Abbott," I said, "I shall always consider you a spoiled and bad-tempered young woman, ungracious, even at the moment when I saved your life, unfair to your employes, and so mean-spirited that you would strike a defenseless servant. Good day."

Leaving her trembling with fury, almost ready to pounce upon me again with her ready hand, I walked out of the room and out of the house. I walked all the way to the village before I stopped thinking of other bitter, biting, excoriating things I might have added to my brief summing up of her character.

I told myself I hated her, that I would let her drown if I had a second chance; that I hoped she would marry Anderson and be unhappy ever after; and numerous other absurd fictions. I was probably the most unhappy human being who had ever stepped into the possession of a small fortune. If it had not been for Rowe, who owned twenty per cent of it, I might have torn up her father's check.

And all the time I knew that I loved the girl with my whole heart, and that I would lie down and let a truck run over me to keep her from harm. No matter how she might treat me, she owned me body and soul, and all she had to do was crook her little finger to bring me running. That's the remarkable thing about love; you may have every evidence that the person for whom you have a passion is unworthy; you may receive the sort of treatment from her own lips that had been meted to me; you may lose your temper and return the same sort of abuse, but fundamentally it doesn't make the slightest difference.

I had looked upon this fortune as the means of approaching her from an angle which might cause her to look upon me with favor. As it happened, she considered that I had practically stolen it from her father, and it was the means of driving us farther apart than I had been when I was a chauffeur and she was my mistress. My gold had turned to ashes and to mistake.

I was hanging around the post office that night when she ran up in the light car, jumped out and went to the window for her mail.

Being aware of her mood toward myself after my parting remarks, I did not wish to encounter her, so I stepped out of the post office, to be buttonholed by Seth Chadwick, and congratulated on my real estate deal, which, thanks to Rose, was all over town. Hardly had I extricated myself from him when I came face to face with Rose. She looked at me with an expression which seemed to say:

"Is it possible that such a horrible creature can still be alive?" Then she drew her skirt, which was so skimpy that the gesture was not in the least necessary, to one side, so that she should not be contaminated by touching me, and passed by. A second later she was driving furiously down the street.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—Adv.

Quicksands of Love

BY ADELE GARRISON

AT my query of what it would mean to him if he were a financial nonentity, Hugh Grantland stiffened and into his eyes came a familiar look. That of the masculine reactionary who believes that woman's place is in the home irrevocably, and that there is something wrong with her mentality or her principles if, after marriage, she wishes a separate economic place of her own in the world.

"That is an entirely different question," he replied with the stereotyped answer to all similar protests—I sometimes think men have copyrighted that answer. "I am a man of whom it is expected that I shall justify my existence economically. You are a woman, a wife and a mother, and you are filling the sphere God has given you with honor and efficiency."

"Thank you," I interrupted, and I am afraid there was a touch of irony in my tones. "If you talked for a thousand years, you could not define your position any more clearly. There are doubtless thousands of women who believe as you do, and who have no resistless urging toward economic freedom. I wish to Heaven I belonged in their placid ranks. But I do not. There is something in me which recedes avidly out for financial independence, for money earned by my own efforts, above all for the conviction that my efforts are worth recognition in the world. It is something which I cannot control, which is as vital a craving to me as that for life itself. The gift of money means independence for me, and it is therefore most precious."

He shook his head sadly, patently unconvinced.

"A woman as beautiful and tender as you cannot have permanent independence," he said. "Sooner or later she is wooed so persistently that she cannot resist any longer, and then she forgets all about everything else. Forgive me for this last thing I am going to say to you. I shall not refer to this subject again, but I must tell you that if your husband had kept you happy, you would not have this strange longing for independence."

A Warning to those who COUGH

PERTUSSIN — the harmless and efficient cough remedy—has been so uniformly successful in the treatment of bronchial affections and coughs, even the most obstinate whooping cough, that—if your cough resists PERTUSSIN, it is an indication that you should consult your physician. For safety's sake you should find out if some deep rooted disorder is causing your cough.

PERTUSSIN is entirely free from injurious drugs and is sold by all druggists in large and small bottles.

PERTUSSIN
Safe for Every Cough

Despite the stress of the moment, I had hard work to keep my risibles in order. He was so deliciously archaic in his understanding of the modern woman's heart.

And yet, I wondered even as I answered him, if deep in my heart there was not something which stirred at his words, in confirmation of their truth.

"You are utterly mistaken," I told him, "but there isn't the slightest use of my trying to convince you of it, so shall we not forget about it?"

I smiled brightly at him, but his answering smile held more pathos than cheer.

"If you can forget all the wild things I have uttered," he said, "it is more than I can hope for. If you wish me to go out of your life altogether, it is only my just punishment. But I wish, of your charity, you would let me see you sometimes, and above all, I want you to remember that my dearest ambition is you happiness. It has made me most happy through the years that are past to know that if you needed me sorely you would call upon me as——"

He stopped short, and I knew that he was horrified at himself for bringing up even so inadvertently that old obligation, his rescue of our baby son.

UNION COUNTY INSTITUTION HEAD RESIGNS

Mrs. Ruth Patrick, Children's Home Superintendent, To Quit March 1, 1927

Marysville, Dec. 13—Mrs. Ruth Patrick, who has been superintendent of the Union County Children's Home for the past year has handed her resignation to the board of trustees to take effect March 1, 1927. Mrs. Patrick succeeded her husband Lloyd Patrick, as superintendent of the home after the latter passed away over a year ago after serving three years as the efficient head of this institution.

Action for the appointment of a new superintendent to take the place of Mrs. Patrick will be taken at the next meeting of the trustees which will be held Dec. 21. No other reason for her resignation was given by Mrs. Patrick than that work at the home was more than she could take care of since the death of her husband. She plans to make her future home in Richwood, where she has purchased a fine property.

During the term of administration of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick, which was about four years in duration, their work has been far above criticism. They have filled the office of superintendent in a manner which is beyond reproach from any source and have shown the people of Union County that the Children's Home is not a prison for the many children who are taken to the institution but a real home for the boys and girls. At the time of their taking over the office of superintendent the home was in a deplorable state, but with the help of an efficient board of trustees the institution is today one of the cleanest and healthiest of the kind to be found in the state.

The board of trustees is composed of the following persons: G. C. Schneiderer, of Darby township; Mrs. Alvi Graham, Mrs. Henry Morey, and Mrs. Walter L. Weidman of Marysville.

LUTHER LEAGUES IN UNION COUNTY DISBAND

Two Groups Given Release From National Organization; Meeting Held Sunday

Marysville, Dec. 13—Both the St. John's Luther League, of near Marysville, and the St. Paul's Luther League of Chuckery, held meetings Sunday afternoon in their respective churches for the purpose of disbanding the two leagues. This action followed information received from headquarters of the American Luther League at Fort Wayne, Ind., advising the leagues of Union County that they had been released from the national organization. It was stated that the local leagues might reorganize if they choose and function under their own jurisdiction only.

Lack of interest and decline in membership were the reasons given for disbandment by G. C. Schneiderer, president of St. John's League. At a meeting held a year ago, records of the organization showed that there were over 170 members. Only 100 of these memberships were renewed for the coming year.

The American Luther League was organized shortly after the close of the world's war and was composed of laymen and pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Missouri Synod. Primarily the purpose of the organization was to combat secret and open societies which had been formed at that time to destroy the parochial school system in the United States. Since these societies have been a failure and agitation against these schools has ceased it was deemed advisable to discontinue the league.

Magnetic Springs, Delaware County Village, Known as Leading Health Resort in Ohio; Has Large Hotel

Practically Every Residence Transformed into Boarding House During Summer

BY GILMORE HILTY,
State Editor The Star

WHAT the automobile has done for Detroit, the Volstead Law for Pyle Field and any number of things have accomplished in bringing naboard renown to practically be other, drinking water of recognized healing qualities may conceivably do for Magnetic Springs.

As a matter of fact, that water has been working along that line for the past half century for the little community of 191 people in the western part of Delaware county. During the past year, persons visited there to undergo treatment for any number of ailments from the farthest reaches of the country.

Included in the group of the very smallest of central Ohio villages, Magnetic Springs has come to be known as the greatest health resort in the entire state with an equal standing of similar enterprises in the nation.

The Beginning

In the community of Green Bend, the year of 1879, James E. Newhouse, who is yet a resident of the vicinity, discovered that the water flowing from a spring in an open field near the river had magnetic powers and would affect iron immersed in it for some minutes. Samples of the water were analyzed by Prof. E. S. Wayne, then state chemist and a member of the faculty of the Cincinnati College of Medicine. It was disclosed that the water had potential medicinal properties. Immediately a small bathhouse and sanatorium were built near the flow of water. Since the popularity of the treatments and the resort have spread until today there are three large hotel resorts established there and during the summer practically every residence in the village is transformed into a boarding house. The name of Magnetic Springs replaced that of Green Bend eventually and that is the name by which the village is known.

The natives will tell you there that the discovery of the magnetic spring that an effect on the community not unlike the "bringing in" of an oil gusher. Everyone wanted a "magnetic spring" and set about to get it. Efforts were not entirely fruitless and a few flowing springs have been developed as well as several wells. The analyses of the water of the various springs differ somewhat.

The Treatment

The bathhouses have been maintained in connection with the hotels since the first beginning of the resort development. Methods of treatment have been developed by local physicians hotel owners and others during the fifty years. The first plan adopted was for the patient merely to drink the water and bathe in it. The successful system now used by one of the resorts includes the original plan of consuming great quantities of water and a rather elaborate bathing treatment. The patient while undergoing the latter is in rooms where a constant high temperature is maintained to eliminate possible contraction of cold. He is taken through a series of shower and tub baths, placed in a steam oven, wrapped in heavy blankets and left on a bench for a period of free perspiration and finally "cooled out" with a masseur treatment, intensified with the use of salt and finished off by a last trip to the magnetic showers. Expert handlers are maintained in the bath houses the year round.

The Park Place Hotel and Bath, which is pictured above stands as a monument to the success of Magnetic Springs as a health resort. Adjoining this $300,000 structure, capable of accommodating 100 guests, is the original spring discovered by Newhouse. The ability of that individual to visualize 50 years ago the possibilities of the spring water is responsible for the beautiful natural setting of the hotel. Following his discovery, Newhouse, who was the owner of the land, laid out the village and planted dozens of young trees adjacent to the spring. Now, the once open field has been transformed into a beautiful park, from which the hotel derives its name.

Park Place Hotel, Magnetic Springs

The Fire

Four years ago, the original Park Hotel, a frame structure, was greatly damaged by fire and plans immediately launched by the management for the present modern structure. In the three years of its existence, there have been approximately 45,000 baths given there. The managers are Christopher Magee and his son-in-law, Frank L. Williams, a former prominent Pittsburgh newspaper man. One feature of the establishment is a nine hole golf course.

The other large health resorts in the village are the Magnetic Springs Hotel, the Healthatorium and Ballard's Bathhouse.

Magnetic Springs was the western terminal for several years of the Columbus, Magnetic Springs and Northern Electric Railway, which discontinued operations in 1918. The line extended from Delaware to the village and furnished the one public means of transportation to the resort from the outside world. Manager Magee of the hotel was one of the principal owners of the line. At the present time, adequate transportation facilities are available by bus lines to Marion, Marysville, Richwood and Delaware.

Baby Home Planned

That the village of Magnetic Springs has a future of no mean possibilities is evidenced in the fact that Joseph Schonthal, widely known millionaire philanthropist of Columbus, has selected Maple Dell, a picturesque nook one-half mile from the village as the site for the erection of a home for babies and convalescing mothers. Schonthal is planning to maintain a boys' summer camp in connection with the home.

There is a bit of history connected with Bokes' Creek, the stream which leisurely winds its way through the hotel park and along the edge of the village on to Maple Dell. The stream was named after an old negro slave in the service of a civil engineer by the name of Rogers, in the employ of the government and sent through this section of the state conducting a land survey. The family home of the Rogerses was established eventually at Columbus and the body of Bokes, the servant, placed in the family burying ground in that city.

Forgetting the angle of the magnetic water and the health resorts, there is little to relate of Magnetic Springs. There are no industries or manufacturing concerns located there. There is a modern centralized school offering practically all advantages of city institutions of learning. The school building is a modern structure and is less than ten years old. There are two churches, Methodist and Disciple, five stores, two garages, a postoffice and that's all.

Following the ceremony, which was witnessed only by the members of the immediate families, the happy couple left for their new home in Alabama City, Ala., where they will reside.

Hardin County Court Scene of Carl Morey Will Trial

Kenton, Dec. 13—Hearing of the Morey will contest case, involving the disposition of more than $55,000 worth of property in bequests, opened in the Hardin county court of common pleas today.

Because of the prominence of parties interested and the unusual question involved, the case is attracting unusual interest throughout the county.

The contested will bequeathed between $15,000 and $50,000 to the First M. E. church here for the construction of a memorial parsonage. The case will likely occupy most of the week. Prominent legal talent is employed on both sides.

In addition to the regular jurors drawn for the September court, a special venire of twenty names has been summoned from which a jury panel will be drawn.

Plaintiffs in their petition filed charge that the will in which a large sum was left the M. E. church here, is not the last will and testament of Mr. Morey and that "undue influence" was used upon him at the time. According to the petition filed, Carl Morey, son of the late Sylvester and Ella (Selectain) Morey, pioneer residents of Hardin county, inherited an estate of approximately at $55,000.

The will is being contested by Norman Wertz, newspaper man in Garfield, a relative, Mrs. Eva Price, Mrs. Ida Wilsey and Mrs. Mary White, Mrs. Price and Mrs. Wilsey are cousins, and Mrs. White an aunt of the deceased. Defendants are: James R. Dunseath Tuscon attorney, Mrs. Robert Dowell, Mrs. Ida Morey Hoppe, The Kenton Savins Bank & Trust Co., and the First M. E. church.

Other investigations, chiefly political in character, will follow.

Peace With Insurgents

The Republican committee on committees made peace with the insurgents by restoring Senator Frazier, Republican of North Dakota, last of the ousted insurgents, to the full seniority rights and party privileges. With other insurgents and independent Republicans given choice committee chairmanships, the party will stand united on politics, though not on legislation.

A stiff legislative program must be disposed of during the winter, even though tax reduction is not considered. In the senate, the question of leasing the government's $150,000,000 Muscle Shoals project stood first on the program. There were indications that after some debate, the whole subject would be referred to the senate agriculture committee for further consideration. Following this, Republican leaders anticipated action on the tremendous rivers and harbors bill, which already has passed the house. In the offing, lay two important prohibition measures, the Andrews reorganization bill, creating a new prohibition bureau, and the Goff bill, extending the government's power in prohibition cases. Both promise warm debates.

In the house, the interior department appropriation bill was debated today, following enactment of the treasury and postoffice department supply measure. Others await action while Republican leaders expected to call up the alien property bill, on Wednesday, for settling all German-American claims, growing out of World War seizures.

Radio legislation presented a problem for both house and senate although no action will be taken, it was said, until the conference on the Dill-White bills, enacted last session, have presented a report on their deliberations. A compromise measure probably will be enacted into law.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF BONUS DRIVE BRINGS RESULTS

Application for Claims Must Be Filed by Dec. 15; Local Men Notified

Announcement that local American Legion officers had begun a campaign to have Marion County World War veterans file applications for their state bonus on or before Wednesday, Dec. 15, when the limit expires, brought immediate results, Saturday.

Copies of the Star containing the announcement had been in circulation only a few hours when a local resident informed A. W. Sandrock, commander of Bird-McGinnis Post, No. 102, of the American Legion, that his two sons had never applied for the bonus. They are now located in New York State and have been notified to file their claims at once.

Although payment of the bonus was authorized by a vote of the people of Ohio about six years ago, a large number of ex-service men in the state have never received their share, it is stated. State Legion officers recently launched a general drive to have all applications filed before Dec. 15. Veterans not qualifying before that date will permanently forfeit their rights to the compensation.

Patsy's Patter

Gossip and Guesses in the World of Sport

By Pat Murphy

WITH the appointment of Jack McCallister as manager of the Cleveland Indians, President Barnard has filled one of the big holes left by the resignation of Tris Speaker. It is now up to McCallister to fill the other. For when Tris left the team, he did more than create a vacancy in the manager's position. He left a hole in center field which will probably be harder to fill than the one which McCallister will plug up. Tris had several outfielders whom he used in the few times that he stayed out of the lineup himself, but they did not patrol the center garden in the same fashion as did Speaker himself, and the absence of the boss in the lineup was always felt by the rest of the team.

If McCallister is able to get hold of a center fielder who even nearly approaches the peerless Tris, we predict that he will have the Tribe right up near the top fighting for the lead all season. A great deal of Speaker's success as a manager has been attributed to the fact that he had McCallister as his right hand man and chief strategist. Doubtless a great deal of credit McCallister has always had for the success of the Cleveland team has been deserved.

We predict that Jack will make a success as a manager, and with all due respect to Jennings, Burns, Gardner, Collins and the others who were mentioned as likely successors to Speaker we think that Barnard picked about the best man of the lot. If he had nothing else in his favor, his long association with the team, and his intimate knowledge of every man on it, is a big asset. Where a stranger coming in to take charge would have to learn all the little inside secrets of the team, Jack already knows them.

ONE would naturally think that the appointment of McCallister as manager in Cleveland, following the several other changes in managers of big league clubs since the close of the late season, would put a stop to rumors of changes of this nature. But as soon as speculation on the Cleveland leader is laid to rest another springs up. This has to do with the Brooklyn Dodgers. According to dope at the close of the season Wilbert Robinson was slated for the gate. This story was settled when he signed a contract to again lead the team. Now the story breaks that the McKeever interests are peeved because they were not represented at the meeting of the board of directors at which Robinson's contract was renewed. It is said that the family differences in the Superba club may be brought before the meeting of the major league magnates this week.

In the same connection it is reported that the internal strife in the Brooklyn club is to end in a sale of the club. Among those said to be interested in purchasing the stock are Ty Cobb, resigned manager of the Detroit Tigers, and Colonel Huston, who at one time was part owner of the New York Yankees.

JACK DELANEY'S victory over the Jamaica Kid was not unexpected, but it did not lower the least bit the stock of the light heavyweight champion in his claim for consideration in the hunt for a suitable opponent for Gene Tunney. The Jamaica fight was the first Delaney had had for a period of almost six months, and while the kid was never a champion, no dub is going to knock him out in the quick time that Delaney did last week. The Bridgeport Frenchman with the Irish moniker is likely to do the same thing to the Boston Pole who has adopted the Irish name of Sharkey when they meet next month.

WEDNESDAY night at Columbus, Ira Dern, who last week lost a close match to Clarence Eklund, and who is regarded as one of the best light heavyweight wrestlers in the country, will meet Joe Hackenschmidt, a rough customer from Detroit. Hackenschmidt will go into the ring with every fan in Columbus wanting him to lose. Last week in a preliminary to the championship match he met three Columbus men in an "all comers" stunt, and incurred the displeasure of the large crowd by refusing to shake hands after beating each of them. He was the recipient of a great razzing by the crowd, and it is a cinch that he will never be a favorite in Columbus.

In his appearance against the three local heavies, Hackenschmidt displayed prodigious strength, but he is meeting a man in Dern who is known as one of the strongest men of his weight in the game.

Gambier Five to Furnish Local Independent Quint With Stiff Opposition

Several Letter Men and Newcomers Combine To Form One of Best Teams in History of College; Shovels Will Have Roll of Nebraska with Them

BY EDDIE SCHOENLEB
Sports Editor, The Star

ANOTHER college quintet will furnish opposition for the Marion Steam Shovel independent five here Tuesday night, when Kenyon cagers from Gambier, O., invade the new gym with a set of stellar performers that will make the Ohio Conference teams step this year.

Last week, the Shovels opened the season against Ohio Wesleyan and suffered defeat to the tune of 44 to 33. Next Tuesday, they will again try their luck against a strong crew representing an Ohio college.

Clayton Van Epps of Bellevue, is captain and center of the Kenyon College outfit, and is considered one of the best pivot men in the Ohio Conference. Another star is Alvin Carey of Fostoria, who holds down a guard position with the college crew.

Among the new men is Nolen Putnam of Detroit, who made the freshmen team last year and has been running wild on the varsity this season. Putnam was All-Michigan high school guard for two years while attending Southeastern High of Detroit.

Other Stars

Several other men from last year will combine to form one of the most dangerous teams in the Ohio Conference this season. It is probable that the five taking the floor Tuesday will compare even with Ohio Wesleyan.

The Shovels have held practice sessions regularly since their defeat Tuesday and will be ready for battle Tuesday.

Roll of the University of Nebraska, the best basket shot and cleanest player on the Columbus Kinnears here Thursday night, will be seen in a forward position with the Shovels when they face Kenyon. Roll took the place of Miner on the Kinnears Thursday and rolled in six field goals and a free throw. He had only one foul called against him while other Kinnears were swamped with personals.

Wilson with Shovels

Bob Wilson of Mt. Gilead, who was unable to appear in the Wesleyan game, will also be seen in action against Kenyon. These two men, combined with Pugh, Bacon, Compton, together with Bohyer, Ward and Irvin, will make up one of the strongest quintets ever placed on a local floor.

Two Steam Shovel League teams will furnish entertainment for the preliminary which is scheduled to start at 7 o'clock. The main go begins at 8:15 prompt.

SECTIONAL CAGE TOURNAMENTS MARCH 5,6,11,12

Harding High and County Champs Will Participate

Harding High cagers will journey to Delaware March 4 and 5 to take part in the preliminaries of the regional tournament of the Central Ohio District A teams at Ohio Wesleyan University, it was announced today. If they survive the preliminaries, they will again travel southward for the semi-finals and finals on March 12. The surviving of the finals will go to Columbus for the state tourney, March 18 and 19.

Discontinuance of basketball by the Class A schools of Cincinnati has resulted in several changes in arrangements for the regional and state high school cage tournaments, according to W. R. Townsend, Ohio high school athletic commissioner.

Due to an over-abundance of Class B schools in the southwestern district, in which Cincinnati schools are located, and a falling off of A schools, that district will be represented in the state tourney at Columbus on March 18 and 19 by two B schools and one A school. Other districts will be permitted one team each in both classes with the exception of the northeastern and northwestern areas, which, as usual, will be allowed two each, because of their size.

Marion County champions and runners-up in the Class B division will also travel to Delaware on March 4 and 5 to participate in the district tournament and will return on March 11 and 12 if they are lucky enough to survive the first rounds.

DELANEY TO RESIGN

Will Give Up Present Title To Meet Tunney, Claim

New York, Dec. 13 - Jack Delaney will resign as light heavyweight champion of the world within two months in order to fight, without official handicaps, as a legitimate contender for the heavyweight title.

This was the word in circulation today and boxing men of national repute vouched for its accuracy. They declared that Delaney's action will be forced upon him in order to evade the curse of one of those New York State Athletic Commission's edicts which would send him into the ring against Gene Tunney weighing not more than 175 pounds, under pain of disqualification.

COOPER WINS MONTEREY OPEN BY TWO STROKES

Delmonte, Cal., Dec. 13 - Beating his closest opponent by two strokes, Harry Cooper, of the El Serrano Country Club, Los Angeles, today was the winner of the Monterey peninsula open, worth $5,000 in prize money. Cooper, who won the $10,000 Los Angeles open last year, will receive $1,200 of the prize money. He finished the 72 holes in 293 strokes.

Larry Nebholtz, of Cleveland, finished with a 69 and a 77 yesterday to place second, having a total of 295 strokes.

TO JOURNEY SOUTHWARD

Chicago, Dec. 13—Having closed the American Professional Football League season here, Red Grange and his New York Yankees were today enroute to the southland. They play the first game of their southern barnstorming expedition at Atlanta, Ga., tomorrow.

THIRD ROUND OF INDUSTRIAL CAGE LEAGUE TONIGHT

Three Fast Games Scheduled for Star Auditorium

Games in the third round of the Marion Industrial Basketball League will begin at 7:15 tonight in the Star Auditorium when the C., D. & M. quintet takes on the scrappy Fairfield Engineering crew.

The second game of the night promises to feature the third round. Railway Service men and Commercial Steel cagers will battle in this fray. Both teams have strong lineups, several Isaly players being found on each quintet, together with other experienced basketeers. The Service men have won two games this season and the Commercial five has annexed one victory. Neither team has yet suffered defeat in the Industrial League games.

The C., D. & M. cagers should trim the Fairfield Engineers by a large margin but the dope bucket may be due for a kick, and plenty of excitement will result.

Hubers and Marion Business College are scheduled for the final game tonight. Neither team has won a game this season in the Industrial League. Hubers are doped to win tonight.

The Osgood quintet, with one victory and one defeat, will rest tonight. They meet Fairfield Engineers next week.

The prize to be awarded to the best player of the third round is a jacket, furnished by Charles F. Smith, clothier. The jacket will not be awarded to the high scorer but will be given to the man who plays the best game. It is possible that the person making the most points will recieve the prize but it will be awarded to him on other merits in addition to his ability to drop the ball through the hoop.

WILDCATS NOSE OUT MARTEL HI

Win Tight Game by Score of 16 to 13 at Martel

The Marion Wildcats brought home the bacon from Martel Friday night when they took the measure of the Martel High School quintet to the tune of 16 to 13, in one of the fastest and most exciting games ever played on the Martel floor.

When things looked bad for the Wildcats in the last half, the local cagers tightened their defense and allowed only one field goal during the latter portion of the game. Both teams displayed splendid floor work and team work but Martel was compelled to take chances on long shots to stay in the contest.

Ed Hachten led the locals in scoring, with Joliff on his heels with only one point less. Reed and Burkhart were the stars for the Martel crew. A return game will be played at the Y. M. C. A. Jan. 11.

MULLEN WOULD PROMOTE WALKER-CALLAHAN MATCH

Chicago, Dec. 13—Promoter Jim Mullen will go before the Illinois Athletic Commission today to arrange dates for a number of boxing shows he intends to stage here during the next two months. Mullen also has in mind a return match between Mickey Walker, newly crowned middleweight champion, and Shuffle Callahan. The later is one of the best drawing cards in the middle West.

Sunday School Leagues Open Basketball Season Tuesday on Y. M. C. A. Gym

Intermediate Quintets To Meet in First Games; Junior Teams Will Begin Play Next Monday: Doug Torrence Heads Church Athletic Council

First games of the season in the Sunday School basketball leagues will get under way at 7:15, Tuesday night, on the Y. M. C. A. gym floor when the Intermediate Trinity Baptist cagers tangle with the United Brethren and the Intermediate Trinity Lutheran quintet meets the Calvary five.

Final plans for the leagues during the 1926-27 season were completed during a meeting of the representatives of the various churches with F. O. Rudolph, physical director of the Y. M. C. A. Doug Torrence was chosen president of the Athletic Council of Churches. Dr. U. S. Davis is vice president, and Joe Baker has been selected as secretary-treasurer.

It is possible that the other Intermediate team, the Presbyterians, will meet the Epworth M. E. quintet in a third game Tuesday but the Epworth men have not yet decided upon entering into the league, Mr. Rudolph said today.

Junior Games Monday

The first games of the Junior League will be played next Monday night with the First Reformed cagers tieing up with the Trinity Baptists and the Central Christians battling the Epworth crew. The Presbyterians will be idle unless a sixth team is added to the league before the first contests are played.

At present each league has only five teams. All players in the Junior League must be under 17 years of age and all in the Intermediate section must not be older than 21 years of age. According to rules agreed upon at the final meeting, each person, to be eligible to play on the teams, must attend Sunday School at least three times a month. The captains of the various teams are to keep check on those who attend.

The forming of the Sunday School leagues comes after several weeks of planning and deliberating, and follows a great number of meetings of representatives of the church teams. It has been agreed that all games be played on the Y. M. C. A. floors with all who take part, either becoming members of the "Y" or paying the regular fee, according to a ruling made by the officials of the Y. M. C. A. last year.

All Games at Y. M. C. A.

Last year the games were staged in the armory on W. Church-st, following the new ruling of the "Y" concerning membership but it was finally decided this year to meet the requirements of the Y. M. C. A. rules and hold all games there. A small admission charge will be assessed spectators.

Fred Tschanen and George Jonsson will act as referees of the games.

The board of directors of the Athletic Council of Churches includes W. D. Scranton, United Brethren; Ted Biddle, Epworth M. E.; Perry Seiter, Trinity Lutheran; John Hoffman, First Reformed, and F. O. Rudolph, Central Christian.

ALL-STARS MEET DOUBLE DEFEA

Lose Matches to Delaware and Bucyrus Bowling Teams

The Marion All-Stars met defeat at the hands of the Delaware bowlers and Bucyrus rollers the latter part of last week, losing each match by slight margins.

The total score for the Delaware match was 2788 to 2754. The Delaware bowlers copped the first title but dropped the second game to the local crew. The third and deciding contest went to Delaware.

Bucyrus defeated the All-Stars 2788 to 2470 at Bucyrus, the games being rolled on the Elks' alleys of that city. After going down in the first game, the All-Stars pepped up and took the second contest, only to drop the third and deciding tilt to Bucyrus.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventures

BY JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

Always cold in December, and I give Jubilee the rope to do I let him down out of the in cold weather he looks at I was a stepmother or some- it was below zero when I let yesterday morning, and he a look that I wouldn't let pet a dog give me on Sunday. I was eating my breakfast I make it as long as I could my aunt was waiting to wash my Sunday school, so I asted my it was cold because it was this year, or if it was this time of cause it was cold, and he kept ing a little while, and then he let my vitals stop my mouth.

I thought I was trying to be she scrubbed my face harder er. She said good citizens are clean. She said I owed it to duty to have a clean face and example to others, and she hung ear so hard whilst she wiped that it made the tears come, en she asted me what I was about. I said I was crying be- I only had one face to give to country. She said that giving one face like mine to my country certainly was not giving it much.

Today was colder than yesterday. It felt so much like I was breathing knife blades that I was supprized I didn't get nosebleed. The Lost Bag of Tripe did get nosebleed, but not from breathing. He got it from not running fast enough and because of the lie can with the sugar in that he tooled my mother with. He went to the teacher with it and when she found it happened outside of the school yard she said she was sorry. He waited a minute and then he asted her if she wasn't going to do something about it and she said it wasn't her nose so she didn't have to do anything about it. I don't think she likes him so very well.

It was so cold that we were let stand around the radiator to get warm except Rant Miles whose father works in the stink factory and whose clothes are made out of his father's old ones. He is pretty fierce when he gets warmed up so she sent him down to get warmed up in front of the furnace, and when he got warmed up the janitor and his wife went out and sat in the snow and fanned themselves. I was glad I had two flatirons and a dog to take to bed with me tonight.

Daily Bedtime Story

BY HOWARD GARIS

Uncle Wiggily and His Friends

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily hopped past the Hollow Stump School, the Lady Mouse Teacher crept out to speak to the old rabbit gentleman. Lady Mouse had tied a pink ribbon on her tail, not so much to look pretty as to keep her tail from being stepped on when the animal children were at their lessons.

"Is anything the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily when he saw the Lady Mouse holding up her paw to stop him. "Is a traffic policeman, 'I mean is the school on fire or are any of the little boys and girls playing tricks that you want me to see?" ask Mr. Longears.

"Oh, nothing like that," squeaked the Lady Mouse. "But I saw you coming and I was wondering if you knew how I could get some Christmas tree trimmings."

"It is too early to trim Christmas trees," said the bunny.

"Oh, I'm not exactly going to trim a tree," went on Miss Mouse. "But in one of my classes here is a poor little mouse girl, whose father and mother have very little money. She heard the other animal children talking about their Christmas tree trimmings at the store and four cent store, and, I know Mewie, which is the little thing's name, I know she felt sad. She will not be able to buy any bright things for her Christmas tree, if indeed, she has one."

Down into his pocket went the paw of Uncle Wiggily, and the Lady Mouse teacher heard the jingle of money.

"No! No! Not that!" squeaked Miss Mouse. "It is very generous of you, but I think it would be much better to help Mewie, if you could, how to get her own Christmas tree trimmings, rather than to give her pennies to buy them."

"Perhaps it would be," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "It would make her more independent like. But how is it you can come out of school to speak to me? What is going on in there?"

"Oh, the children are very good," answered Miss Mouse. "I let Baby Bunny have charge of the classes while I crept out to speak to you. But I must hurry back. Now do you think you could show Mewie a way to get Christmas tree trimmings without spending money which she hasn't got and can't get. Do you?"

"I think so," said Uncle Wiggily, wiggling his pink nose. "But can Mewie come out of class?"

"Oh, yes, I'll excuse her," squeaked Miss Mouse. "She has been very good. She studies well. I'll send her out to you and if you can cheer her up please do so."

"I will," promised the bunny, and pretty soon Mewie came out, trailing her long, fluffy tail behind her. Mewie smiled when she saw Mr. Longears, and he smiled at her as he said: "Come along with me, pussy girl, help me find an adventure and I will help you find some trimmings for your Christmas tree."

A pine cone hit Uncle Wiggily on the head.

"Oh, goodie!" cried Mewie, who forgot all about being poor in the joy of making something. She and Uncle Wiggily went to the woods. They gathered pine cones of many shapes and sizes. They found balls from the sycamore tree and long brown bean pods from the locust tree. They also found large nuts from the horse chestnut tree.

All these they carried to Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow. The funny gentleman had pots of paint of many colors, and he had gilding and silvering powders. Soon he and Mewie had made many ornaments from the pine cones, the balls, the nuts and the beans. And when wires were fastened to them, they were all ready to hang on the Christmas tree. While Mewie was painting a long cone a red color, the Fuzzy Fox jumped out from behind a bush and tried to bite her. But the little pussy girl dashed some red paint on his nose and the Fox thought he had the nose bleed, so away he ran.

So Mewie had all the trimmings she wanted and not a penny was spent. And if the bread knife doesn't cut the paper off the wall to make a kite for the jumping jack, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's secret closet.

Don't Let a Cough or Cold 'Go Down'

If you let a cough get down into your bronchial tubes or lungs, it stops being merely a nuisance and becomes a real danger.

A "head cold" is only a bother while it stays in your head. But once it gets down into the danger zone, serious trouble threatens.

Act promptly to check the cough; to keep the head cold from "going down." Sure and lasting relief is as near as the nearest drug store.

Quickly and unfailingly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of danger. Real medicine, reaching deep with its soothing, healing power, penetrating through and through the irritated membranes of your throat and bronchial tubes.

If you are catching cold; if you have a "head cold"; if your chest is tight; if you have a cough — even if bronchitis has developed — Ayer's Cherry Pectoral at once! Keep your cold from going down into the danger zone.

Cherry Pectoral is pleasant, safe and dependable—for children and grown people. At all druggists—60c; twice as much, $1.00. 1b24b

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Give a Radio for Christmas and your gift will remain throughout the years—a joy for one, and for many—a living remembrance from you.

Estate Heatrola—The one and only. No other gift brings quite so much of the joy of possession—No other gift leaves quite as much of the joy of giving.

Where are last year's Christmas Gifts. Some of them have simply disappeared—are not even a memory. We suggest one of our New Perfection Oil Ranges.

Cattaraugus Razors—Perfect in finish and workmanship—manufacturers guarantee this razor to last a lifetime and we furnish this guarantee with each razor that we sell.

Be sure your wife has a Cattaraugus Pen Knife in her sewing basket—They're fine for ripping seams.

One of our washing machines will be a welcome guest in your home every wash day.

Nothing else means so much to a boy as one of our bicycles. Give him one for Christmas and make his school days happier.

We suggest a lunch kit for the boy or girl going to school; it will be a constant reminder of the giver because of its everlasting usefulness.

At Christmas time there is always one gift of paramount importance to be selected—the answer to the problem—you will find at

INVESTMENT BUYING FEATURE OF SESSION

Industrial and Railroad Stocks of Better Grade Sell Steadily

New York, Dec. 13—Investment buying of the better grade of industrial and railroad stocks was the outstanding factor in the stock market today.

Demand for stocks of this class created a buoyant tone in the market as a whole and encouraged the speculative pools to push their favorites into the limelight.

The pre-motor show move in motor stocks continued, under the lead of Chrysler and stocks in this group were firm in the face of rather drastic cuts in prices of a well known make of cars.

The market started operations under the stimulus of an increase of $58,000,000 in the surplus reserves of the New York clearing house banks; but, heavy calls were sent into the call loan market shortly after the noon period, evidently in preparation for the final income tax payments on Wednesday.

The call loan rate advanced from 4½ to 5 per cent, but funds were available under that rate in the outside market.

Chrysler succeeded Nash as the leader of the motor share group. Huge blocks of this stock appeared on the tape in the uninterrupted advance of the stock to above 41, completing a 7 point rise on the move. General Motors again occupied the back seat, while Willys Overland, Packard, Hupp and other low-priced motor stocks featured an unusually active and strong market.

FIRE DESTROYS LARGE BARN NORTH OF CITY

Kelly Island Lime & Transport Co. Sustains Heavy Loss; Covered by Insurance

Fire of undetermined origin last night completely destroyed the large reinforced concrete barn on the Kelly Island Lime & Transport Co. farm north of Marion. All that remained this morning were heaps of burned grain, and the lower part of the walls that once inclosed the barn.

Max Eblin, resident on the company's farm, was called from bed about 10 o'clock by an engineer on the Hocking Valley railroad who blew the whistle on his engine when he discovered the blaze. By the time he arrived at the barn, fire was breaking through the east gable. The Marion City Fire Department was called. Unable to obtain water firemen turned their efforts to protecting the surrounding buildings. Out side of the barn the cow shed was the only other building destroyed.

The only animal in the building at the time was a pony which was led to safety just before the mow caved in.

According to Mr. Eblin, the loss, covered by insurance included between 18 and 20 tons of hay, 600 bushels of oats, 400 bushels of corn, and all the harness with the exception of one set.

The exact loss in cash value will not be known until a check is made by representatives from the company's main office at Marblehead, O.

BANK TO DISCONTINUE WEEKLY NIGHT SERVICE

Local Financial Institution Alters Business Plan Established 20 Years Ago

Beginning on Jan. 1, the Marion Savings Bank Co. will discontinue keeping its place of business open on Saturday nights, a custom which has been in effect ever since the bank began operating more than 20 years ago. Announcement to this effect was made today by officers of the bank, who say that changed conditions during the last few years have detracted from the value of the Saturday night service.

It has been the custom of the Savings Bank to open its doors from 7 until 8 o'clock every Saturday night. After it abandons this practice the West Side Banking Co. will be the only bank in the city continuing the service. All of the local Building & Loan Associations, however, will be open during the usual Saturday night period.

STAGE SET FOR OPENING OF ELKS' MINSTRELS

First Show of Three-Night Bill To Be Presented Tonight at Grand

Final rehearsal for the Elks Charity minstrel which will open tonight at the Grand Theater, was held yesterday afternoon. No detail has been omitted to make this year's production the premier home talent entertainment of the season with very member of the cast holding forth as a real minstrel performer. The costumes are new, vivid and attractive, adding a colorful note to the production. The music throughout the entire production is tuneful and the chorus numbers particularly catchy and melodious. The opening part of the show has been arranged by Charley Gano, director, an old-time minstrel man and is all to be desired in this line of entertainment.

Proceeds of the show will go to finance the Elks' Children's party for needy children throughout the county. While the organization maintains a charity fund to be drawn on throughout the year it has been the custom in past years to stage a Christmas party each Christmas day. Money for financing this party is derived from the minstrel show staged by members of the lodge and this year as in previous ones, the number of children cared for at this time will depend on the proceeds of the show. In case the sale of seats for the three performances, tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, fall short, it will be impossible to give the party, it was announced today.
